

The Arrow that Flies by Day: Existential Images of the Human Condition from Socrates to Hannah Arendt (Paperback)

By Bernard Murchland

University Press of America, United States, 2008. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English. Brand new Book. This study contends that existentialism is the perennial philosophy thus going against the assumption that it is a school of more recent provenance. Anthologies or introductory texts used begin with Kierkegaard (the so-called father of existentialism) and go on to emphasize Nietzsche, Sartre, and Heidegger. This book reflects a more catholic mapping, including three thinkers from the classical period (Socrates, Augustine, and the Stoics), who are argued to be just as 'existential' as more modern thinkers (who are also treated) and indeed influence the latter in important ways. Also included are three Americans (Thoreau, James, and Hannah Arendt) who are rarely considered existentialists. Furthermore, the book has a pedagogical emphasis, reflecting students' points-of-view: what they learn, how they react, questions they have, and how in general existentialism meets their education needs and expectations. It is, therefore, necessarily interdisciplinary in character, pointing out implications of existentialism for education, concerns like happiness, war and peace, democracy, sexuality, and terrorism.

READ ONLINE
[2.96 MB]

Reviews

This is the best pdf i actually have read till now. It typically fails to charge too much. Your life period will probably be transform the instant you total reading this publication.

-- Dr. Don Morissette V

This publication will not be simple to get started on looking at but quite entertaining to learn. It generally fails to cost an excessive amount of. You will not feel monotony at anytime of your time (that's what catalogues are for about if you ask me).

-- Bettie Gutmann